

Information about NIDA's clinical trials is available through ClinicalTrials.gov, a service of the U.S. National Institutes of Health (NIH). See links below. ClinicalTrials.gov provides information to doctors and patients on publicly and privately funded clinical trials conducted across the U.S. and around the world. The Website includes a trial's purpose, location, who may participate, and phone numbers for more details. NIDA's Clinical Trials include more than 650 recruiting, ongoing, and completed trials devoted to potential therapies for addiction.
